Director-General of Nichibunken

Director-General
INOUE Shōichi

The International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken) is the institutional home of the Japanese Studies program within Graduate Institute for Advanced Studies, SOKENDAI. Nichibunken was established to further interdisciplinary research on Japanese culture from an international perspective and also to facilitate and promote research cooperation with overseas scholars. In addition to deepening the study of Japan in the humanities, social sciences, and related fields, Nichibunken also collects and makes available information and materials pertaining to Japanese studies.

Supported by the presence of distinguished senior scholars and a rich research environment, education and research on Japanese culture at Nichibunken aims to nurture young scholars—both from Japan and other countries—through its international and interdisciplinary graduate courses and research programs. The Japanese Studies program also seeks actively to admit promising young scholars from abroad as part of this endeavor.

In order to fulfill its mission of international and interdisciplinary study, Nichibunken is administratively organized under a single chair, allowing for a curriculum that makes possible multifaceted perspectives on Japanese studies and a uniquely flexible teaching and research organization. Nichibunken has also established an environment conducive to team research projects that include scholars from other institutions working in various fields. Postgraduate scholars who seek to continue their research at Nichibunken are encouraged to make full use of its well-endowed teaching and research environment to complete their doctoral degree.

Japanese Studies Program

Chair (Japanese Studies)
ENOMOTO Wataru

The Japanese Studies program offers a highly interdisciplinary research environment. This is reflected in the list of teaching staff. Each member of the faculty brings a different perspective to the study of Japanese culture. The faculty members are experts in their fields, but also have the ability to work across a variety of other research fields. Graduate students entering the program will be able to develop their research skills from a broad perspective under the guidance of not only their supervisor but also other faculty members. Moreover, through team research meetings, symposia, seminars, and research projects, students are exposed to the academic activities of the International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken), which is the parent institution of our program. In doing so, students will develop an interdisciplinary spirit and cultivate their abilities to expand the frontiers of Japanese studies.

Besides its interdisciplinary nature, Nichibunken's activities are also international in scope. Apart from organising and taking part in academic events abroad, every year we invite several leading international researchers to our Center. Interaction with these researchers enriches the research life of the graduate students and provides them with fresh ideas for their doctoral theses. Furthermore, there are opportunities for exchange with students from other programs of the Graduate University for Advanced Studies, such as the National Museum of Ethnology, the National Museum of Japanese History, the National Institute of Japanese Literature, the National Institute for Japanese Language and Linguistics, and the Research Institute for Humanity and Nature.

In this international and interdisciplinary research environment, the mission of the program is to nurture future researchers who will be active in the academic world at home and abroad. We welcome applicants who aspire to conduct original research with a global perspective.

Japanese Studies Program: Overview

Organization

The Japanese Studies program facilitates the pursuit of an international and interdisciplinary Japanese studies encompassing the humanities, social sciences, and the natural sciences. Key to this is the involvement of all our faculty in teaching and research guidance.

The program requires candidates to take courses on “Theory and Methodology in Japanese Studies”, “Interdisciplinary Research”, and “Dissertation Work in Advanced Studies”, which provide the theoretical and methodological basis for conducting Japanese studies from a global perspective. Through these courses and guided research, we will foster researchers with creative and highly specialized perspectives, equipped to undertake Japanese studies in the twenty-first century.

Purpose

The Japanese Studies Program supports education and research on Japanese culture and civilization in international and interdisciplinary perspective through its diverse faculty and the rich resources of its research environment and aims to nurture researchers with an international and broadminded perspective.

An Invitation to The Japanese Studies Program

JSPS Research Fellowship for Young Scientist (DC2) : LIU Ying

The International Course in Japanese Studies at the Graduate University for Advanced Studies SOKENDAI is located at the International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken), where Japanese Studies scholars from Japan and abroad gather to promote interdisciplinary and comprehensive Japanese studies.

The course provides substantial financial support to help each student academically flourish in a fulfilling research environment. A wide range of support is available, including the Graduate Student Research Project, which assists students in gathering research materials and presenting their research at academic conferences; the Research Assistant (RA) system, which employs students to perform auxiliary work related to their research; as well as support for the cost of copying materials through the Nichibunken Library.

I am engaged in the study of colonialism, and the Nichibunken Library has a rich collection of colonial-related materials. Not only that, various research activities dealing with colonialism, such as study groups, symposiums, and lectures, are regularly held. The excellent research support, abundance of research materials, and active research program all adds up to a fantastic research environment. In this rich setting, I am able to really develop my research, reflect on issues related to colonialism across time and space, and look to solve the research puzzle which I have set myself.

As a pioneering research institute in Japanese studies, Nichibunken supports the research of each and every student on the course. You will really develop a great deal here, both as a person and a scholar.

Faculty Profiles (as of July 2024)

1) Specialized Fields; 2) Current Research Themes;

ENOMOTO Wataru (Chair)
Professor

1) Medieval history of international exchange; 2) My research focuses on relations between Japan and other countries from the ninth through fourteenth centuries. While Japan's interest in diplomacy was low in this period, private or unofficial relations with other countries were even more active than before or after that time. As manifestations of that activity, I take up mainly merchants engaged in overseas trade and priests who went to China to study.

ARAKI Hiroshi
Professor

1) Japanese literature; 2) My research focuses on Genji monogatari, Konjaku monogatari, Tsurezuregusa, and other classics, and I am also interested in the culture of dreams. Currently, I am engaged in a team research project titled "Solid 'Impermanence'/Fragile 'Impermanence': The Transmogrification of the Classics and Future Prospects" to consider new angles for exploring the international and contemporary possibilities of classic culture. The project explores the international and contemporary possibilities of classical culture.

Frederik CRYNS (Deputy Director-General)
Professor

1) Interaction between the Western world and Japan
2) I have been working on the Dutch factory in Hirado, William Adams (Miura Anjin) and Hosokawa Gracia. I am also pursuing a joint research project on "The Formation and Development of Western Perceptions of Japan".

ISODA Michifumi
Professor

1) Japanese history; 2) I am studying reforms of the bakuhau system of the middle to late early-modern period. Following the Tōhoku Earthquake and Tsunami I began gathering historical material about previous earthquakes and tsunami in an effort to put the information to use in disaster prevention. Recently, in cooperation with local governments, I have begun to investigate old documents concerning the shinobi (ninja) of Iga and Kōga.

ISOMAE Jun'ichi
Professor

1) Religious studies; critical theory; 2) I think we can observe something of the essence of humanity in the person who commits evil acts while believing he is doing good. Isn't it true that the concept of the divine as well as the phenomenon of bias (discrimination) arise out of such workings of the mind? This is the source of my fascination with the subject of religion.

ITŌ Takayuki
Professor

1) History of Chinese thought; cultural interaction in East Asia; comparative culture; 2) My research focuses on the philosophical and intellectual history of China, placing it in the context of the East Asian culture sphere including Japan and Korea. In some cases, my consideration adds global viewpoints including that of the West or a comparative or international relations perspective.

KUSUNOKI Ayako
Professor

1) Japanese political and diplomatic history; security studies; 2) Japan's post Asia-Pacific war policies on diplomacy and security took shape during the period from the occupation to the peace treaty. Why is that these policies have been basically adhered to over the long term? We shall consider the outcomes of the intermingling of two contexts: that of Japan's international relations since the nineteenth century, and that of international politics and domestic environment during the cold war.

LIU Jianhui
Professor

1) History of cultural connections between Japan and China; 2) I pursue the mutual cultural influences and interventions in the modern East Asian region as a whole (including those between Japan and China), transcending one-country views of history and re-appraising the region as a cultural community that together experienced the impact of Western modernization.

MATSUDA Toshihiko (Deputy Director-General)
Professor

1) History of Japanese and Korean relations; 2) I am currently studying medical care and sanitation policy in Korea under Japanese rule. Particularly through the activities of the famous bacteriologist Shiga Kiyoshi, famous for discovering the dysentery bacterium, I examine relations between Japanese doctors and Korean society as well as world changes in medical research centered on the United States and how those changes were related to the Japanese empire.

SEKINO Tatsuki
Professor

1) Informatics; 2) I conduct research and development for visualization and analysis of information based on time. Results of this research are made available to the public in the form of the time information system HuTime, Web applications, and basic data for dealing with dates in the Japanese calendar.

TAKII Kazuhiro
Professor

1) Constitutional history; comparative legal history;
2) I study the formation and development of the Meiji constitutional system from the standpoint of the history of intellectual society and international relations. By approaching the history of Japan's constitution from both internal and external perspectives rather than simply as a phenomenon of one country, I hope to generate research that will have currency at an international level.

Timon SCREECH
Professor

1) Art history and history of the Edo period; 2) 1. Art history and visual culture of the Edo Period. History of anatomy and body criticism; erotica. Rethinking 'sakoku', and international exchange 2. Deification of warriors in the early-modern period (Toyokuni daimyōjin, Tōshō daigongen). Nationwide network of Tōshō-gū shrines. 3. International exchange in the early-modern Kingdom of Lūchū (J: Ryūkyū). Cultural history of the Yaima (J: Yaeyama) islands.

YAMADA Shōji (Vice Chair)
Professor

1) Informatics; history of cultural exchange;
2) I am engaged in the study of changes in the copyright law and their impact on culture, of the changes that occur in such traditions as Zen or popular culture when they are transmitted overseas and of the responses to them on the Japanese side, and of Digital Humanities, and other topics.

YASUI Manami
Professor

1) Japanese folklore; cultural anthropology; 2) I continue to conduct fieldwork in Japan and Micronesia in order to shed light on folk customs and human interactions as they relate to changes in practices revolving around such issues as pregnancy, childbirth, and medical care. I am also engaged in exploring how people have imagined the body and expressed it symbolically in iconography, from a perspective in which such fields as folk belief, medicine, and art overlap.

ZHAN Xiaomei
Professor

1) History of artistic connections between Japan and China in the modern age; 2) I investigate internal factors out of western influences in the formation and transition of modern Japan and China art, from the perspective of cultural history. I pursue the common situation and the relation of the traditional Artists' Society, including Literati Paintings—a common genre between China and Japan. Furthermore, I pursue the Manchurian Experiences of Japanese Artists.

Edward BOYLE
Associate Professor

1) Border studies, heritage studies; 2) My work examines borders from the early-modern to the contemporary era, looking at sovereignty and territory, spatial representation, the politics of belonging and marginalization, and memorialization. I study borders and borderland spaces in Japan and Northeast Asia more broadly, and also conduct field research in Northeast India and on Palau.

KATAOKA Mai
Associate Professor

1) Modern Japanese literature; comparative literature; 2) I conduct research on the English translation, editing and publishing processes of modern Japanese literature, and the reception and dissemination of that literature. My specific focus is on the English-speaking world after the Pacific War, and I examine the inside history of the "passage" across borders of works of translated literature and the transformations they undergo. I am concerned with the reality and possibilities of modern Japanese literature as it takes shape under an international gaze.

Professor ARAKI will retire in March 2025.
Professor ISOMAE will retire in March 2026.
Professor LIU, Professor SCREECH will retire in March 2027.

Message from an Alumnus

SONG DanDan (Degree awarded in September 2023)

The International Course of Japanese Studies at the Graduate University for Advanced Studies SOKENDAI is based at the International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken) in Kyoto, Japan. I enrolled at the Department of International Japanese Studies (now the Course in International Japanese Studies) there in April 2018 and received my doctoral degree in September 2023.

At Nichibunken, I received tremendous support from both SOKENDAI and the department, and was fortunate to be able to lead a fulfilling doctoral life without experiencing any difficulties in terms of research, living, or finances. In terms of research, I had the opportunity to be in contact with leading researchers from around the world and to participate in diverse and interesting research groups at Nichibunken, which has greatly broadened our perspectives and greatly contributed to our research activities. Furthermore, the Nichibunken library is well-stocked with materials necessary for Japanese studies, and even if something is not on the shelves, it can be requested from other institutions inside or outside of Japan. This favorable research environment has been crucial in supporting my research.

In addition, thanks to the "Graduate Student Research Project" and other programs, I was able to give conference presentations, venture out on fieldwork, and collect research materials. As my research focuses on Japanese folklore, fieldwork is essential, I was able to conduct fieldwork not only in Japan but also in China and the U.S., in order to collect the data necessary for my doctoral dissertation.

In terms of living, students have the opportunity to apply for various scholarships and can receive financial support through the Research Assistant (RA) program. In addition, international students have access to housing at Nichibunken for up to two years.

It was a dream come true to be able to conduct research in such a supportive environment. Since returning home, I often find myself thinking of my advisors and the other professors, the administrative staff who supported my research, and my fellow graduate students. Having passed through the Graduate University for Advanced Studies SOKENDAI, I would like to share with future students the research methods and human encounters that I experienced at Nichibunken.

Japanese Studies Program Admission Policy

● Qualifications

The Graduate University for Advanced Studies (Sokendai) seeks students of any nationality or cultural background who are interested in Japanese studies and motivated to pursue interdisciplinary research from a broad perspective. Accepted students are expected to draw on the diverse knowledge and methodologies of the Japanese Studies Program faculty, and to independently and critically undertake interdisciplinary Japanese studies research. Admissions are open for the three-year doctoral program. Applicants are required to hold a master's degree.

● Selection Criteria

Sokendai screens the submitted documents and interviews potential candidates. Along with an assessment of an applicant's academic abilities and capacity to conduct independent research, candidates are evaluated on the originality, theoretical and empirical, of their master's thesis and any other scholarly papers submitted; on the originality, feasibility, and academic potential of the research the applicant seeks to pursue; and on their presentation skills, communication skills, and overall future potential to contribute to the field.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q1 Is there any system for waiver of tuition fees?

There is a system for waiving tuition for students citing economic difficulties and whose academic work is deemed of a high standard. Applications for tuition waivers are offered once each semester each year and are decided on the basis of a fixed screening process.

Q2 Does the Program have a research assistant system?

The Program does employ research assistants, chosen from among current graduate students, to perform support tasks relating to research and teaching, and a system is in place for allowing RAs to perform duties beneficial to their own research in the Program. A salary is paid for the services performed as a form of financial assistance.

Q3 Where do students study and research? At Hayama? Or Kyoto?

The headquarters of The Japanese Studies program and the base for research guidance and dissertation writing is on the premises of the International Research Center for Japanese Studies, located in Kyoto. Some functions for all students of Sokendai, such as the entrance and degree-awarding ceremonies, are held at the Hayama campus, headquarters of Sokendai.

Q4 Is it necessary to choose an academic supervisor before applying for admission?

Yes, it is necessary to choose an academic supervisor and to consult with the supervisor about the contents of your research before applying for admission. The program administrative staff does not suggest faculty advisors, so applicants should check the faculty profiles provided in the Program brochure and at the Program website in making their choice.

Q5 Does the Program grant degrees to students residing elsewhere?

Currently many of our students are working toward their degrees while living in areas distant from the Department headquarters. It is necessary, however, to be attend in person the lecture class part of the requirements for the degree.

Q6 Is it possible to enroll in October?

The Japanese Studies program no longer offers October enrollment.

Q7 Is it possible to apply to another program at the same time?

No.

Q8 Does the Program have Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (DC1, 2) fellowships (for doctoral course 1 and 2)?

As of FY 2024, the Program has 3 doctoral course fellowship students (Awarded a grant in 2019, 2022 and 2024).

Research Activities at Nichibunken

The International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken) was established on May 21, 1987 as an inter-university research institute incorporated under the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology. Its purpose is to promote the comprehensive, international, and interdisciplinary study of Japanese culture and provide cooperation and support for the work of Japanese Studies specialists around the world. From April 2004, Nichibunken became a member of the National Institutes for the Humanities (NIHU, headquartered in Tokyo). The three main pillars of Nichibunken activities are: Research (individual, basic, and team [joint] research), research cooperation, and outreach. Of these activities, those closely related to the graduate students in The Japanese Studies program are introduced below:

● Team Research

The pursuit of research on Japanese culture calls for the steady accumulation of the results of study in separate specialized fields related to Japan. It also calls for a place where scholars can transcend the framework of their separate disciplines and expand their insight and knowledge through exchange and collaboration. Such opportunities for team research can play a major role in promoting understanding of Japanese culture as a whole.

Exchange between researchers from Japan and those from other intellectual traditions is also considered an essential part of team research at Nichibunken. Furthermore, as we enter an era of expanding internationalization, such interaction helps the field of Japanese studies to better respond to the needs of the times.

The team research carried out at the Center is not limited to exchange of research findings. The essence of what the Center is trying to achieve is fostering of creative energy generated through the cooperative research of scholars from diverse intellectual traditions.

◆ Seventeen team research projects were organized in FY2024.

● Conference, Events

The regular research-related events held at Nichibunken shown below are provided to facilitate exchange among scholars of Japanese studies from all over the world. Graduate and international students are also welcome. Nichibunken holds other lectures and symposiums in addition to the bellows.

● Nichibunken Forums

Nichibunken Form mainly aims to introduce to the public the results of Japanese students by non-Japanese researchers at Nichibunken as a means of contributing to international exchange. Since its founding in 1987, the event has been held at venues in the central part of the city of Kyoto.

● Nichibunken Thursday Seminars

These seminars, where scholars give presentations on topics of the latest scholarly research, are held at Nichibunken to promote exchange among researchers.

● Nichibunken Evening Seminars

Presented by researchers from overseas in English, these seminars are held at Nichibunken.

● International Symposiums

With mounting interest in Japanese culture and society among the countries of the world, the issues of scholarly inquiry and research methods have grown increasingly diversified. To deal with these developments, Nichibunken has held international symposiums mainly on the themes of team research projects undertaken at Nichibunken, thereby providing an international forum for debate to propel the further development of Japanese studies. Nichibunken also organizes several types of international symposiums overseas as part of research activities and collaborative research programs outside Japan. Through various support programs the graduate students at The Japanese Studies program are encouraged to participate in these international meetings.

Books and Resource Materials

● Library

The Nichibunken Library, opened in April 1991 offers a variety of information services and a wide-ranging collection of books, reference materials and documents—some 600,000 in all—vital to the field of Japanese studies and available for use by all qualified researchers.

Including Library Annex I, Library Annex II and the newly opened Annex III (2014), the library has a total capacity for approximately 700,000 volumes housed in both fixed and electronically controlled compact shelving. The library also has a rare book room, map room, microfilm room, four study rooms for individual researchers, and two for groups.

Research Material Collection Principles

Books and materials related to Japanese studies written in languages other than Japanese

We are trying to acquire as many of these materials as possible.

Books and materials considered basic for any research on Japan

We acquire basic materials published both in and outside of Japan.

Catalogues and indexes of literature related to Japanese studies

We seek to keep up-to-date catalogues and indexes of literature related to studies on Japan, as referring to them is the first step towards gathering the necessary information in scientific research.

Audio-visual materials

The library also holds colored photographs and glass negatives of works from the late Edo and Meiji periods, old maps, DVDs of Japanese movies, and other audio-visual materials.

Usage of Library Materials

The Nichibunken Library is open to unlimited use by all Nichibunken staff and students, with some restrictions for rare books and some other items. Researchers outside Nichibunken may obtain access for scholarly research purposes by applying in advance. The database recording Nichibunken's library holdings may be accessed via the Internet. Documents in the collection may be photocopied or obtained on loan through other libraries and institutions through the NACSIS-ILL (interlibrary loan) system.

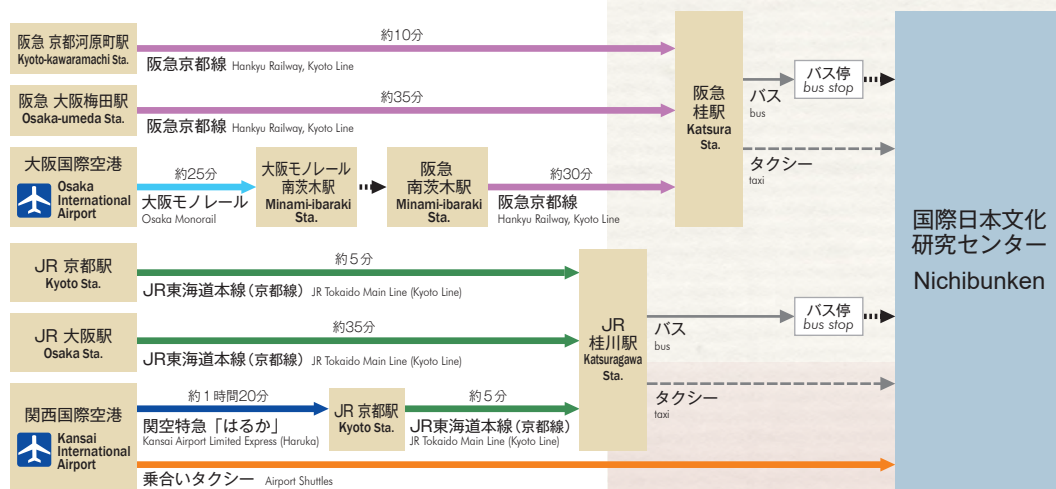

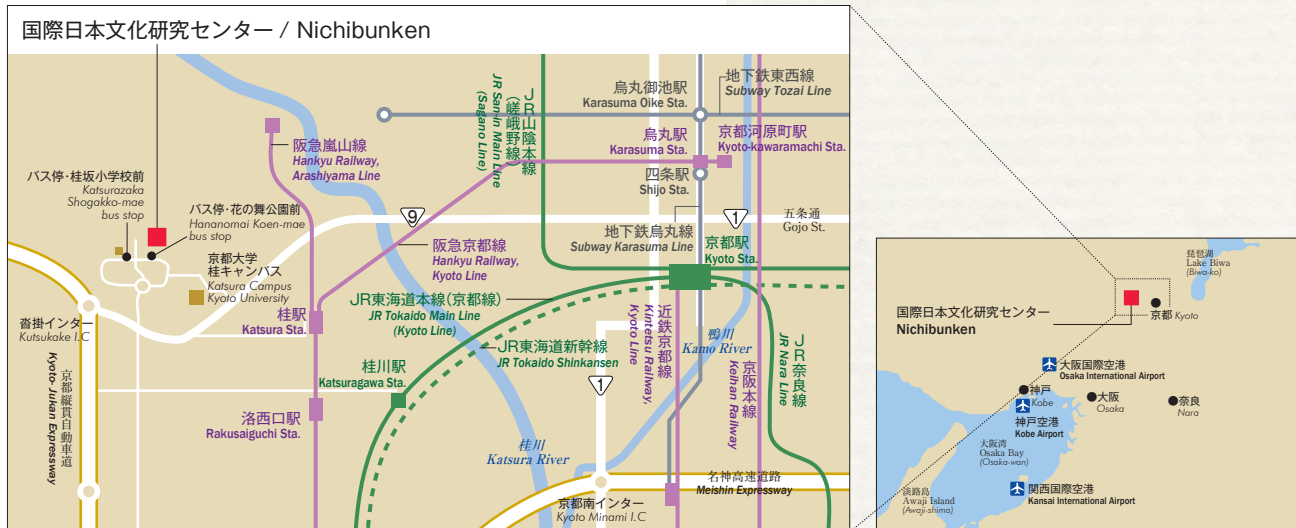

Library staff are on duty between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. The Library is open to Nichibunken staff and students between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.
